Comprehensive Japanese	At the Beginner level, students learn everyday expressions and vocabulary necessary for situations such as work, school, and daily life. At the Intermediate and Upper Intermediate 1 levels, students discuss various topics with classmates, organize their own opinions, and present them. At the Upper Intermediate 2, students research topics of personal interest, prepare materials, and deliver a presentation.
Characters and Kanji	Students learn 326 kanji characters at the Beginner 1 and 2 levels, 356 at the Intermediate level, and 352 at the Upper Intermediate 1 level, covering the reading, writing, and meaning of a total of 1,034 characters. At the Upper Intermediate 2, students study a wide range of kanji, including those frequently used in social topics and news articles.
Listening Comprehension	At the beginner level, students practice listening comprehension exercises to listen to and correctly understand simple everyday conversations and short sentences at a natural pace. At the intermediate level and above, students gradually learn to listen to and understand longer presentations and lectures, and write summaries.
Reading Comprehension	At the beginner level, students practice reading and understanding simple sentences, short letters, and emails on familiar topics, as well as exercises in reading comprehension that involve extracting information from signs and notices. At the intermediate level and above, students cultivate reading comprehension skills by reading a wide variety of texts—ranging from those concerning familiar social and cultural topics (such as newspaper articles, explanatory texts, novels, and essays) to those dealing with social life and academic contexts (such as newspaper articles, critical commentaries, reports, and explanatory texts).
Grammar	Students learn the foundational grammar knowledge, sentence patterns, particles, verb and adjective conjugations, and honorific expressions required for the “Comprehensive Japanese,” “Reading Comprehension,” “Listening Comprehension,” and “Conversation 2” classes, aiming to improve their reading comprehension and conversational skills to the A2–B1 level.
Conversation	Students develop the conversational skills needed to sustain long conversations by naturally expanding on topics related to daily and social life and identifying common ground. They also learn how to respond and show consideration in ways that help them understand the other person’s perspective and circumstances, respond flexibly to issues and differences of opinion, and build smooth relationships with others.
Reflection	Students develop the ability to manage their own learning independently. They assess their current Japanese proficiency, set learning goals to achieve their objectives, and reflect on their classes each week.
